GOOD LOTS FOR DEALERS.

The lots following are not cents selected at random from circulation, but all were taken from collections. They comprise the entire remainder of Mr. John C. Schayer's stock of cents, which formerly numbered many thousands. A MEDALLION.

514 Profile portrait of Robert Morris, the great financier, facing left, in light bronze, finished with bronze frame, complete for suspension, of fine workmanship and color, and would be an ornament in any position, particularly in library or hall: the head is in high relief, with a projection upwards of two inches: the costume is of the period, ruffled shirt, hair dressed and tied in a queue. The medallion is circular, the entire diam. 22 in., and weighs 26 lbs.

During the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia several young men appeared and announced their intention of making a series of medallion portraits of all the signers of the Declaration of Independence. This highly artistic medallion was produced as a sample. Their work proceeded no further, and it is believed that no others exist but this series. The metal alone is of considerable value, being fine bronze.

A PRECIOUS RELIC OF GEORGE WASHINGTON.

515 A gilt and jet Locket, watch shape, with crystal. The locket is nearly filled with the hair of George Washington. It was presented, during the life of Washington, in 1787, to Miss Dickinson by Mr. Custis, one of Washington's staff officers and a brother of Mrs. Washington's first husband. Miss Dickinson was a descendant of the Bessenett family of Philadelphia. This locket contains a sufficiency of hair to be divided in a great number of memorial rings, and as its genuineness can be and is established beyond a doubt, a good opportunity is afforded to manufacturing jewelers and dealers in bric-a-brac and relics to make a fine thing by its purchase and division as suggested. See plate.

516 A Miniature Portrait of the Mr. Custis referred to in the preceding paragraph, presented by him to Miss Dickinson in 1787. Painted on ivory: the tablet cracked, but the injury scarcely shows. Unique, of course, and valuable for illustration; tablet oval, $1\frac{3}{4}$ x $1\frac{3}{8}$ inches in size.

UNIQUE COPPER DOLLAR, 1776.

1800 An endless chain of 13 links, each inscribed with the name of one of the original States; in the centre, "American Congress: we are one"; rev., "Continental Currency, 1776," in the centre a sun-dial, "Mind your business"; in an intermediate circle the sun shining, "Fugio"; fine.

This piece is well known in tin; there being two varieties, in one of which Currency is correctly spelled. A specimen, struck in brass, was found in the Bach collection, and one in silver appeared in the Clapp sale.

lection, sold in New York in 1871. This unique silver piece, worn by circulation as a coin, I purchased for $100. It was afterwards in the Adams collection, and I believe is now one of the highly valued ornaments in Mr. Parmelee's magnificent collection. It is from the same die as the above described. From the original memorandum catalogue begun by Mr. Robert Bach in 1830, and kept by him until his death in England, I learn that the brass piece was purchased there. This, with the fact that the silver one also was from England, leads to the belief that the pieces are of English origin, and struck as patterns of a dollar for American circulation. I regard this piece as equally rare and valuable with the silver dollar from the same die. It will not be offered except at a starting bid of $45.

This work, a monument of German learning and patience, would have been possible only in Germany. 22 vols. of text and 2 vols. of index, 24 vols. in all; bound in 12 thick vols., the first 8 in smooth calf, the outside ornamented with a coat-of-arms, the back with five gilt coronets, — the last 4 in a different style of binding, calf with gilt backs; all clean, about as it left the press; will be sold as 24 vols. MY NEXT SALE.

Sale No. 71 will be of the collection of Mr. E. B. Wight, late of Detroit, Michigan, now of Cleveland, Ohio.

In the regular mint series this collection is very nearly complete. Full set of Dollars, all but 1804, Half Dollars complete. Quarter Dollars, all but two, Dimes and Half Dimes nearly full, Cents and Half Cents complete. A feature of the cabinet is a nearly full set, in splendid proof condition, of the United States Mint Medals. The sale will be made in New York, at the usual place, about the last of January or beginning of February. The Catalogues will be ready for distribution early in January.

The Priced Catalogues of Sale No. 69 were greatly delayed, owing to the impossibility of getting the work done more promptly. The clerical labor of pricing them is simply immense, making it impracticable to distribute them more rapidly. As I shall never again issue a catalogue of such magnitude as the last, similar delays will not happen in the future. Priced copies of this Catalogue, No. 70, will be ready very soon after the sale. They will be on heavy tinted paper, with an illustrative plate. The price, sent by mail, $1. The ordinary edition, with the plate, printed for those who wish to know the appearance of some of the coins before bidding, may be had for 25 cents each.

Correspondents who write concerning this Sale, No. 70, will please address me at home until Dec. 26; from that time till Jan. 1, 1885, care Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York. Estimates of the probable auction cost of any lot or line of coins will be promptly furnished, and all letters of inquiry cheerfully answered. Orders to purchase should be sent several days before the sale, in order that they may be properly entered in my book; failure in this particular is liable to lead to disappointment. For nearly every sale orders are received after the auction has taken place, and not infrequently dated from a distant place subsequent to the day of sale. Strictly faithful personal attention given to every order, but no orders are solicited except such as bear some relation to the value of the coins offered. It is the general practice of the auction room to charge back to the owner all coins sold for their face value or less, hence it is quite impossible at any sale to buy dollars at seventy-five cents each and smaller coins in proportion, and such bids may as well be withheld, as they neither merit nor receive any attention. Gentlemen who are in the habit of favoring my sales with reasonable bids will take no part of these remarks to themselves, as they are especially intended for bidders who will not fail to recognize their appropriateness, — gentlemen who are always ready to buy an 1802 half dime for 6¼ cents or a 1794 dollar if extra fine for $1.50.
